Three Ballots in County

Primary Election Set For Tuesday, Sept 1st

The State Primary Election will be held throughout Michigan on next Tuesday, September 1st. In Crawford County, voters will receive only three ballots. They will be the State Officers Ballot, the Non-Partisan Judicial Ballot and the County Convention Delegate Ballot.

On the State Officers Ballot will appear candidates for Governor, United States Senator and Representative and State Senator and State Legislator for both the Democratic and Republican parties.

There are three contests on the Republican side of the ballot and only one on the Democratic side. County Officers will not appear on the ballot at this election as there is no contest for nomination on the side of either party.

Likewise, county voters will receive no township ballots as only Beaver Creek Township holds a Primary Election and in that there is no opposition for nomination to the Fall Election there, an election is not necessary. Other townships in the county nominated their candidates for township offices via the caucus route.

The Republican battles for nomination pit present Governor George Romney against George N. Higgins, Ferndale auto dealer and former State Senator for the right to carry the party's toga into the November election. A three way battle is being waged by the G.O.P. for the right to battle Senator Philip Hart in the November fray. Vying for the Republican U. S. Senator nod is former Republican National vice chairman, Elly Peterson; member of the State Board of Education, James F. O'Neill of Livonia and Edward A. Meany Jr. of Rockford, a leather company official who has been on the campaign trail for the past two years.

The other G.O.P. battle is for the nomination for State Senator in the newly created 36th District which emerged from the state reapportioning. Seeking the nomination are three candidates: present State Senator Harold B. Hughes of Clare who at present represents the old 28th District which included Crawford County; Guy Vander Jagt of Cadillac, former television personality and Dan Gordon of Leland, former newspaper publisher and present State Representative from the Charlevoix District.

Others appearing on the Republican side of the ballot are incumbent United States Representative Elford A. Cedarburg, unopposed and present State Representative Nelson A. Tisdale of Midland now serving the Midland District and seeking the seat of the newly created 103rd District by reapportioning which includes Crawford County. He also is unopposed.

The lone battle on the Democratic side of the ballot is for the nomination for the 103rd District for the November Election. Vying are James William Paulus and Earl T. Miller. Other candidates listed on the Democratic slate, and all unopposed, are: for Governor, present U. S. Representative-at-large Neil Shaebler; incumbent United States Senator Philip A. Hart; for Congress from the 10th District Hubert C. Evans and for State Senator, Eugene J. Gershon.

The Non-Partisan Judicial ballot contains the names of those seeking the three nominations for the new state Court of Appeals. The new Court was created under the new Constitution. Those seeking the three nominations, in alphabetical order, are: Maurice Black, Robert B. Burns, Austin J. Doyle, John W. Fitzgerald, Donald E. Holbrook, Robert G. Howlett, Allan C. Miller, Philip H. Mitchell, Carlton H. Morris and Andrew West. Morris is a former State Senator, while Holbrook at present

Govt. Payroll Lower Locally

(Special to the Avalanche)
NEW YORK — The cost of government is relatively low in Crawford County. Local residents pay somewhat less on a per capita basis to meet the regular payroll for their public employees than do people in most parts of the United States. This is brought out in a new Federal report on public employment at the local level of government, which comprises counties, townships, municipalities, school districts and special districts. Excluded are persons who are in Federal or state employ.

Comparative figures are given by the Census Bureau to show the number of people so employed and the size of the payrolls in each locality. The study is based on data obtained from every area of the country in the course of its 1962 Census of Government. In Crawford County, the report shows, the payroll for all local government workers amounted to $48,000 during the month selected for the survey.

This sum, divided equally among the local population, was equivalent to a cost of $9.41 per resident. It was less than was spent for the purpose in most communities in the United States, the average being $10.59 per month. It was less, also, than the average cost throughout the State of Michigan, $11.73 per capita.

The census report shows a total of 202 persons employed by the various branches of local government in Crawford County. The number includes 132 full-time workers and the remainder part-timers. To get an understanding of how this stacks up with public employment in other communities, it was necessary to convert the part-time workers into their equivalent number of full-timers.

As adjusted, there is one full-time worker locally for every 35 residents.

This is high in relation to the situation in other areas. Nationally, the average is one person employed by a local government for every 42 people. In the State of Michigan, it is one for 41.

Education accounts for more than half (52 percent) of all local government employment, according to the findings. This includes teachers, school librarians, administrators and others connected with school systems.

FIELSTRA - BANCROFT WED IN MUSKOGON

The marriage of Miss Barbara Ann Fielstra and Mr. Erwin LeRoy Bancroft was solemnized at one o'clock on Saturday, August 15th, 1964, at the Lakeside Methodist church in Muskegon. She carried a cascade of white roses and white carnations.

Mrs. William Vanderlinde was matron of honor and Miss Emily Frachia bridesmaid. They were identically attired in gold taffeta sheath dresses with floor-length petal overskirts. Matching caps held their puffed veils. Their flowers were bouquets of white, yellow and bronze pom-pom mums.

SATISFACTION
The wise businessman knows the importance of customer-satisfaction. To begin with, the money-back guarantee represents a "vote of confidence" for the product offered for sale. The merchant, in effect, says, "I know you will like it!" Further, it means, "I want you to be happy doing business with me. I aim to please."
The guarantee of satisfaction today extends to nearly everything that most of us buy and this is particularly true of appliances and such home that we buy for our homes. The wise shopper looks for a warranty or a guarantee whenever he buys.
Talks around here, when they buy a product that is backed up by a manufacturer's warranty or guarantee, and is sold by a local merchant whose aim is to serve, should be able to understand what the word "satisfaction" really means.

Rough Campaign Ahead?

As just about everyone must know, the standard public opinion polls all give President Johnson a wide edge over Senator Goldwater. Some have placed the Johnson lead in popular vote at the almost unbelievable figure of seven to three. And most of the commentators have pretty well written off the Goldwater chances and assume a Johnson election.

These are facts of moment to the Republicans who are concerned not only with electing a President, but in holding and, if possible, increasing their strength in Congress, in the state capitals, and in lesser political divisions. But they certainly have not caused any noticeable despair within the ranks of the Goldwater followers. For, the Goldwater strategists clearly believe, the polls have shown a capacity for major error in forecasting primaries and other political contests. In their view, the situation of today will not be the situation in November after Goldwater has had a chance to stump the country and present his programs harder and in more specific detail than has been the case until now. Most important of all, they believe that there are millions of voters in this country who have not had a candidate representative of their views and wants and that these voters, whose strength is far greater than any poll indicates, will enthusiastically turn out for Goldwater and bring him, and the party generally, victory.

U. S. News & World Report has done an excellent job in summing up Goldwater strategy and in pointing to historical precedents that deny the idea that any candidate is at all likely to garner in 70 per cent or so of the vote. In all the elections since the Civil War, in fact, only two Presidents have received as much as 60 per cent of that vote — Harding, in 1920, with 60.4 per cent, and Roosevelt, in 1936, with 60.8 per cent. Two Presidents — Truman and Kennedy — gained office with a trifle less than half of the popular vote in elections in which minor party candidates received some popular support.

What, then, is the Republican strategy, on a state-by-state, region-by-region basis? U. S. News describes it this way. Heavy inroads are to be made in the deep South, and 74 electoral votes gained there. Then 30 will come from the Rocky Mountain states, 106 from the Middle West, and 24 from the Border and New England states. That should it happen, would bring the GOP to within 36 electoral votes of the 270 needed to win. California, with its 40 votes, thus becomes the key. And in California, Senator Goldwater has shown great strength and has a potent organization as his primary victory over Governor Rockefeller demonstrated. Every effort will be made to cement and to increase these vital assets.

That seems to be the basic strategy. Mr. Johnson and the Democrats, obviously, will have something to say about it. And, as of now, Senator Goldwater needs to gain much ground in some of those states and areas if the plan is to become the reality. There are some very big unpredictable elements involved — as, for instance, what ultimate effect the civil rights law, and the ominous racial conflicts which show no signs of abating in either North or South, will have on either of the top candidates and on the candidates for other partisan office.

A safe prediction: It will be one of the hardest-hitting, no-holds-barred campaigns of recent times.

The Game Warden's Lament — If the game warden asks to see your license, he's insulting. If he takes your word for having one, he's corrupt. If he arrests a violator, he's showing how tough he can be. If he gives the culprit another chance, he's showing favoritism. If he labors day and night to enforce the law, he's a tyrant. If he relaxes at all, he's a shirker and a crook. If he talks fish and game conservation, he's maudlin. If he keeps quiet, he's not interested in his work. If he accepts suggestions or advice, he's incompetent. If he works out problems for himself, he's a know-it-all. If he acts like a gentleman, he's too easy. If he acts firm, he's unfair and a rascal. Pinpointing Journal.

What an editor says about Vander Jagt.

Guy long ago dedicated his life to the service of his fellowmen, but after a year in Germany on a Rotary Foundation Fellowship, where he saw what the failure to stand up and work for freedom and democracy could mean, he changed from his intention of a life in the ministry to serve mankind instead in the field of politics.

We have learned to know this man through close association. We have observed him work in this campaign; we have witnessed his ability to instill his enthusiasm in others, and we have seen men who never before bothered with politics get behind him and work for the cause we all believe in. His help is coming, not only from the old, seasoned politicians, but from political novices, from men like ourselves who have learned to know him as we have - as an upright, fair and sincere person.

Vander Jagt is the one candidate for the state senate who has far above average ability, a wealth of background and experience, and a depth of dedication needed to make him truly the "Voice of the 38th." We are convinced that if you choose Guy Vander Jagt as the Republican candidate for state senator next Tuesday, it will not be many years before you will be proud to say "That's our Guy" on his way to Washington.

Unique School for Unschooled Operating Near State Capitol

SCHOOL FOR UNSCHOOLED
A "new and different" educational project is underway within the shadow of Michigan's State Capitol. Students attending classes in old St. Mary's School are all majoring in the same subject - jobs.

"The world doesn't owe us a living - all we ask is that it give us a chance to earn one ourselves."

With this creed, 150 students, most of them previously unemployed, are undergoing a one-year training program at the Michigan Catholic Conference Job Training Center. Religious background is not considered when enrolling students, and many faiths are represented.

The unique anti-poverty program, designed to make them employable, is being paid for by three Federal agencies and is sponsored by the Michigan Catholic Conference which represents the Catholic Bishops of Michigan. However, few of the students and staff are Catholics.

Students attend classes daily from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. in old St. Mary's School. The program calls for 30 weeks of basic education and 20 weeks of vocational instruction. Students receive training allowances ranging from $20 to $48 weekly depending on their family status.

Average age of all students is 34. Married students have an "average of four children; one has 12. Their formal education level is grade six. One in four students had less than three years of formal education.

The average earnings of each trainee last year was below $700. Francis J. Coomes, Executive Director of the Michigan Catholic Conference, said the program has received "outstanding support" from all major faiths in the Lansing area and other community organizations like the Lansing Community Services Council.

"Central Methodist, for instance, is operating a Nursery School for pre-kindergarten children of the trainees," Coomes said. "And transportation for the pre-schoolers is being supplied by the Lansing Chapter of the American Red Cross."

Coomes said most of the students are making "good progress." We are pleased with results of the program so far but the real test will be whether they can get jobs afterwards," he said.

"If they can get jobs that will pay twice as much as they were receiving on welfare; then the training will pay for itself," Coomes said.

IF EXPERIENCE COUNTS
Farm displays and other agricultural matters at Michigan's State Fair are in the hands of six experienced farmers. The Fair opens Aug. 28 and closes the evening of Labor Day, Sept. 7.

The six farmers who are in charge of exhibits include two who come from Centennial Farms, which means they have been operated by members of the same family for more than 100 years. One of these is Stanley M. Powell of Ionia. Powell is very active in the Farm Bureau and raises both prize milking shorthorn cattle and prize sheep.

The other Centennial Farmer is Delmont Chapman, South Rockwood. He has served on the State Fair Authority several times and in the State Legislature. He is the third generation to operate the farm and now raises prize sheep. His youngsters are also active in sheep raising.

Former Director of Agriculture
Charles Figg, a Morenci farmer, is chairman of the State Fair Authority. Youngest member of the group is Robert Zeebe, 32. Chosen Outstanding Young Farmer in 1963 by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, Zeebe operates a 480 acre dairy farm with his father near Bath.

Robert J. Noon, Jackson, has been on the Fair Authority for more than a dozen years. He raises swine sheep and Shetland ponies. Lyle Glover, operates a 247 acre dairy farm near Fowlerville where he was born in 1907.

Bits O' Talk

A. L. Roberts returned home Friday from a two week inspection trip, and on Saturday picked up his wife in East Jordan. She had been visiting her mother, Mrs. Elva Barrie while he was away.

Guests of the Matt Bidvia Tuesday and Wednesday of last week were her niece and family, Mr. and Mrs. John Pace and five children of Roseville. Sunday, the 16th, the Bidvias took their grandchildren, Laurie Sue and Bobby Ballinger, to Frankenmuth to return them to their parents after a week here. The Ballingers returned to their home in Wayne after all had dinner. Russ and Sue flew to Miami, Fla., for a weekend vacation last weekend, incidentally.

PONY TALES

By

JANET W. OLSON

September is the month to take note of all of the things that need to be done to ready your pony and property for the winter months. Take a paper and pencil and walk slowly around your property, writing down everything that must be tended to before the cold weather arrives. Are your fences in good shape? Remember that in the summer may not be high enough when your pony is standing on a foot or two of packed snow. Does the gate need repair? Are there any cracked window panes that might give way and drop glass where either you or your pony might step on it? Fill in any holes in the pony's yard. A hole filled with light snow can be a deceiving thing to a pony and could cause a bad fall or even a broken leg. Remove all dead branches from trees, a falling branch can give a pony quite a whack he sides frightening him. Also check for poisonous plants, these seem to taste better to a pony after the first frost. Check for splintered boards in the stall, a good way to do this is to look for loose of tail or mane caught on the wood. This is also a good time to worm your pony. There are many fine products on the market for this, but most of them should be obtained from your veterinarian. Never give your pony a worm preparation made for dogs.

Fall is also a good time to start keeping a pony record if you have not already. Even with one pony it is wise to keep a note book for that pony. Keep track of such things as the amount of feed you use, if you change feed, jot down the date, keep track of any illness, a pony can have a cough or cold just as you can. If you vaccinate your stock for equine encephalomyelitis (sleeping sickness) and tetanus (lockjaw) be sure to write the date of injection in your record book. You will be amazed at how often you will use your record book to look up a date or some piece of information you may have forgotten.

We will try to keep you reminded of important things too so why not clip these columns out and keep them in your record book.

HINT FOR THE WEEK — Never over feed your pony, thinking you are doing him a favor. Horses and ponies have less digestive capacity than cattle, therefore they are limited in the amount they can comfortably hold at one time.

IDEA HOME DECORATIONS

Bunk beds are a space saver for the average large family. You can buy bunk beds or you can build your own to fit the dimensions of any size room.

An accompanying illustration shows how a corner of any room can become a "bunk house" — to the delight of young "cowboys." Note that space above bunks, rather than being wasted, is devoted to cabinets — with plenty of storage room for clothing, cap pistols, toys, etc.

Building a "bunk house" is not too difficult a task for the average home handyman, and most suppliers of panel products even furnish detailed plans.
